

Nationals Play Georgetown Today---Virginia Nine Loses, 3 to 1

VIRGINIA BEATEN IN FINAL GAME

Nationals Capture Getaway Contest at Charlottesville by 3 to 1.

"SCHAEF" GETS HOMER

By WILLIAM FEET.
Charlottesville, Va., March 26.—As a training camp get-away stunt, Griffith's Nationals hung a 3 to 1 defeat on the Charlottesville collegians. The contest was anything but exciting, and marred by weak hitting and stupid base running on the part of the Nationals and a wretched exhibition by the Virginia outfielders.

Big Epps Rixey was on the mound for the Collegians and pitched four innings. The Nationals reached him for one run, but he yielded only three hits. Griffith worked Tom Hughes and Jerry Akers. The veteran was in rare form for this time of the year, and Virginia could not touch him. Akers was wild, and but for good fielding on the part of the men behind him would have had more than one run chalked up against him. The big feature of the battle was Germany Schaefer's circuit clout in the seventh, when two were gone. The comedian put his weight behind a swing and caught one of Griffith's twirlers full on the jaw. The ball sailed over the left field fence, and as Germany jogged around the sacks he paid his respect to each Virginia infielder in turn. Germany's homer was the only earned run the Nationals could claim.

Schaefer leads at bat. Schaefer also led the Nationals at the bat, with three hits to his credit. Rixey, the Virginia twirler, demonstrated that he can do something besides pitch, for both times he came to bat he connected for safe swats, a single off Hughes and a double against Akers. Not so bad for a college freshman!

The way the Virginia outfielders dropped by balls was a caution. Each garden patch performer had a miff to his credit, or discredit.

Rixey blanked the Nationals in the first chapter, but Bill Cunningham blasted the second with a dandy three-bagger, walloping the ball over Fitcher's head in deep left field. McBride was safe on Neff's poor throw to first of the captain's roller, and when Foster forced McBride at second Bill Cunningham scored.

Southpaw Grant was in the box for Virginia when the Nationals went to bat in the fifth. A Washington tally was handed out on a silver platter. John Henry, the husky backstop, drove a home run to Lander, who pitched the ball. Henry plugged along to third and scampered home when the relay, Lander to Douglas to Neff, was wild and woolly. The ball was finally recovered near the railroad tracks.

Virginia's lone tally was recorded in the fifth, when Akers gave Hewitt a base on balls and Rixey clubbed one over Schaefer's dome.

The Nationals' third and final tally was Schaefer's home run clout, as described in the foregoing.

NOTES OF THE GAME

A high wind swept across the diamond at intervals, and rained havoc with fly balls to the outfield. The Nationals were bothered by it very little, but Virginia's outfielders ran around in circles.

Dan Moeller hit in hard luck. First-baseman Carter robbed him of at least two safe drives.

The Yankins did not even don their uniforms, but viewed the game from the grandstand.

Griff intended to work "Buck" Becker part of the game to-day, but when he had his men on the field he discovered only three pitchers, and Becker had to twirl during batting practice.

Poor base running in the Nationals' fourth cost a run—further comment is unnecessary. It smacked of the bush league.

Jack Flynn deserves more than passing mention. He pulled off some dandy stops on first base and connected for a double, besides drawing two bases on balls.

There was a wild run for the dining-room after the game, for the last meal of the training camp. Joe Engel led the bunch, and didn't pull away from the plate once during the dinner.

STARTS HIS BRAVES TO-DAY.

CLARK C. GRIFFITH.

Leader of the Nationals, who will send his charges against Georgetown at the concrete coliseum this afternoon.

Bits of Baseball.

Beckendorf, former Washington and Detroit outster, will be first string catcher for Providence this year.

"Bill" Bernhard, manager of Nashville, says Otto Hess has taken a drastic step in entering the majors again. Hess is with the Boston Nationals.

First games in the United States League will be played April 15-May 1.

A. Mooley, manager of Birmingham, was pitcher for Washington in 1911.

The seven outfielders on the two Boston teams, Speaker, Hooper, Lewis, Hendricks, Miller, Jackson, and Campbell, cannot be duplicated in any city that supports two major league teams.

"What has become of Constant Reader?" of the old-fashioned pitcher who used to pitch eight or nine games a year? He is twirling for the Illinois team, serving the state with his left paw. The other is still in a sling.

Jimmy Burke will insist that every member of the Indianapolis team become proficient in the science of sliding to the bag, and the player who shows but little aptitude in that direction stands but little chance of earning a regular berth.

Proofreaders, please note: There's a stark and a stack, not to mention a Kent and a Kent, the Brooklyn squad. One of the Hot Spring papers for maybe it should be The Hot Spring paper, had stark in as a "newly wed." It should have been "stack." "Dolly" says he can prove an alibi.

Since Bill Bergen, former Brooklyn catcher, has been added to the staff of Joe McDermott, Newark, fans are claiming the Tigers are better fortified in this respect than any other International League club. The list of backstops includes Bergen, Harry Smith, McCarthy, and Ryserson.

Connie Mack has been sorely disappointed in his young infielders. He was in search of one who could be coached into becoming a Collins, Barry, McInnis, but Chase, an eighteen-year-old first sacker, is the only one left. He is a high school experiment, but appears to be made of the right stuff.

Bill Sweeney now will have no cause to worry for three years. Bill has done some splendid work for the Boston Nationals when the going was the hardest, and the fans will be glad to see him reaping the reward for his gameness, which was expended in times when it counted only a little for his team.

Nap Rucker, of Brooklyn, says that "Whitney" Alperman, the Elms boy, field leader of last year's champions, who has hooked up with Atlanta, will be a big help to Manager Henphill.

Sterling first baseman that he has been, George Stovall must be forced to retire in favor of a youngster by the name of Rutins, who showed so much last fall that he looks like a coming star.

Manager Kling thinks exceptionally well of Dickson, the Texas pitching recruit, and will give him all the chances in the world to show ability enough to become a regular with the Boston Nationals.

Umpire Tommy Connolly, of the American League, has been elected a member of the Citizens' party committee at Newk, Mass. Everybody is doing it now. Even umpires are throwing their hats in the ring.

JENNINGS NOT SERIOUSLY HURT.

Tigers' Leader Has Ear Slightly Cut in Week.

Jackson, Miss., March 26.—While none of the Detroit Tigers, who were in the Queen and Crescent wreck at Delta, La., last night received dangerous injuries, several of the star players of the team will be unable to get back in the game for two weeks or more.

The Tigers reached Jackson early today. Hugh Jennings toured his camp to ascertain the extent of injuries. Edgar Summers, of the pitching staff, is more seriously hurt than was the other players. He has a wrenched knee that will keep him laid up for two or three weeks. Maloney has a sprained ankle and cannot play for at least ten days.

Willet, O'Leary, and Davy Jones have a number of scratches and bruises. Jones, however, was able to leave with the second team for Hattiesburg, Miss., this morning.

Mrs. Lattie, wife of one of the players, is suffering with a wrenched back, but her injuries are not regarded as serious. Jennings escaped with a cut on his right ear.

TABLES TURNED ON CATHOLIC U. NINE

Swarthmore Evens Up with Local Collegians, Winning, 6 to 3.

TARBELL TWIRLS WELL

Swarthmore evened matters with Catholic University yesterday afternoon when they took the second game of the series 6 to 3. Clancy doing the mound work for the local collegians was as wild as a hare during the early part of the game, allowing the visitors two runs without giving them a hit. The base running of Durbarrow for Swarthmore and Widmayer's costly errors, coupled with Swarthmore's stick work in the seventh inning, was the direct result of the Brooklanders' downfall.

Durbarrow was passed four times and succeeded in stealing second each time but one. He kept the Quakers in the game by his brilliant running. He started things off in the seventh after Catholic University had succeeded in tying the score on a single by Zachary. Clancy's sacrifice, a triple by Lynch and Hayes' double. After getting to second a Jimmy Valentine, he registered when Widmayer let Tarbell's grounder get away from him. Hits by Gieg and Lucas filled the sacks. Then came the clout that put the contest on ice for the Pennsylvanians, a two-base hit by Weaver on which all on bases counted at home.

Weaver played excellent ball, and not only did he drive in the winning scores, but saved Catholic University from scoring in the fourth by gathering Widmayer's terrific smash, with a hit label on it, with Lynch on second.

Zachary, Lynch, and Hayes performed cleverly for the home team. "Streets" was there with the head work in the sixth by catching Weaver off third on an attempted throw to the plate. "Dutch" Heesler broke into the game in the eighth and made a brilliant debut by slamming out a triple with Zachary on the key-stone position.

Swarthmore put up a commendable exhibition of baseball, excelling their opponents at almost every angle. Their batting was much more consistent than it was in the first game, and by managing to bunch their connections in the seventh round, saved themselves from a duplication of yesterday's termination.

The work of Catholic University was by no means poor. It was a case of too much property on the part of some of their number. Several good plays were the outcome of timely and well executed team work on their part. Batting was their weak point in the game yesterday.

Tarbell was a bit too much for them, judging from their inability to get the needed safeties. When they bunched their bats to get the runs, but it seemed difficult for them to get the marks. Score: Swarthmore, 6; Catholic U., 3.

CENTRAL DEFEATS NAVAL MEDICOS

0 Streeters Land Opening Battle by 10 to 4 Score—Heflin the Star of the Game.

The Central High School baseball team won its initial game of the season yesterday afternoon by defeating the team representing the Naval Medical School 10 to 4. The game, which was played on the Capital City League grounds, was rather slow and one-sided.

Captain Garigan's boys displayed a knowledge of the game and showed much promise. Heflin played the stellar game for the winners, while Yoho and Apple showed the shining lights for the Medical students. The 0 Streeters displayed speed on the bases and should develop some fast sprinters. The score:
